Bethel, the Beautiful?

Although winter is playing its usual lingering game, it seems to be a fitting time to anticipate the conditions of the next few weeks, perhaps to be better prepared for a few of the springtime opportunities. Spring, which might well be considered as the beginning of the year, has ever been a season of high resolutions. This is especially true of the arm-chair type of farmer or gardener, who during the last three of winter, is likely to envision improbable bursts of energy and accomplishment with the arrival of bare ground and lovely sunshine.

The project in mind this week is a step toward regaining or retaining for Bethel Village its old-time reputation for beauty. To be sure, as we have said before, its major attraction is due to its location. But its claim to beauty during its 170 years has also been based on the successful attempts of proud residents to enhance its natural assets.

The story in last week's Citizen, telling of the impressions of a visitor in town 100 years ago this month, stressed the ideal arrangement of the village centered around the Common, with stores nearby and the mills down the hill. At

Economic Highlights . . .

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare. It is clear that President Eisenhower does not look upon himself — or anyone else — as being an "indispensable man." When the subject came up at a press conference in connection with the 1960 general election, he said: "Did you ever think what a fate civilization would suffer if there was such a thing as an indispensable man? When he went the way of all flesh, what would happen? It would be a calamity, wouldn't it? I don't think we need to fear that."

Republican strategists, however, with their fingers held to the prevailing political winds, take a somewhat different view. They find that Mr. Eisenhower, personally, is far more popular than the party. And most of them seem to have come to the conclusion that their 1960 prospects, so far as can be seen today, would be dim indeed without him at the head of the ticket.

U.S. News & World Report, in its issue of March 11, concisely sums up the current political situation in an article based upon the Gallup and other polls, and upon the conclusions of seasoned battlers in the political arena. On the GOP side, it is all Eisenhower.

According to the latest Gallup Poll, the President's popularity among the voters is close to its all-time high — 71 per cent of them approve his conduct of his office, as against 55 per cent in September, 1953. His low point, 77 per cent, was reached in November of last year. Among Republicans, 74 per cent want him to run again for them."

organization, as they choose, with out fear of reprisal by either employers or unions. There is no more fundamental or important right." Wakefield (Mass.) Item.

Cannell, Ind., News: "There is one thing we can do as good Americans. That is to keep ourselves as well informed as possible and to keep the news media informed."

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

The Stock Market: I choose it for my current essay everybody is taking it apart and looking for bugs. Must be something wrong they say. It is going up. And everybody who has a share of stock — and there are millions now — say hurry and they should, they been having a long, tedious wait. And the folks who make the move go in this land of the free and easy and opportunity, are the folks who put up the down-mi to build factories and power lines and drill holes in the earth to search out oil and metals. Without these folks who risk their savings in stocks and bonds, who would do all these things. There should be a "stockholders' day" to honor these people-like red raspberry day or apple pie week.

But this INVESTIGATION, I reckon it could turn out to be a good thing. In dispute. Instead of something wrong, I figure it could be vice versa. If there is a bug in the machinery it will show up. You don't put an alarm clock in the ash can because it needs a drop of oil or has a small screw loose. You fix it. But zanilike, wacky politicians, thinking they see opportunity, reckoning, come out with alarm — they are rocking the boat — they set all down.

Above everything else, this land needs high stock prices. They reflect good business. It is that simple.

OVATION TO SPRING

In summer I go wading
In some cool sparkling brook,
Then sit me down to day-dream
In a sweet secluded nook.

In autumn I go wading
Through dry and rustling leaves,
Making loose brown windrows
Like so many harvest sheaves.

In winter I'm enchanted
With frosty paintings grand
Of ice and snow and sunshine
glow;

Soft flakes by breezes fanned.

In early spring I walk go
Upon the cold hard crust,
Where myriad diamonds sparkle
On a blanket of sheer star dust,

Or all the changing seasons
I like the gentle spring
Two seasons, seemingly in one,
A time to dance and sing.

With slim yet gentle fingers
Spring loosens winter's hold,
She doesn't mind his last wild fling
Nor fear his visage bold.

Patiently she urges him:
And sets his records straight,
Smooths the way for his aged feet
Out through the seasons exit gate.

Calmly they bid a fond farewell,
This odd entwining pair;
He so boisterous, harsh and cold,
She so gentle, sweet and fair.

She then unlocks the frozen streams
And warms the beds of nature,
Before she awakens the sleepers
Therein.

With her personal nomenclature,

There is no art like that of spring,
No science half so thrilling
As from the damp, dark earth
she calls

Spring flowers waiting and willing.

No season is so strong as she
Though seemingly so fragile

She reclothes every living thing
Her movements swift and agile.

She then unlocks the frozen streams
And warms the beds of nature,
Before she awakens the sleepers

SCHOOL NEWS

Grade 5—Mrs. Hastings

We are making Easter hats out of strips of cloth.—Last Friday 20 people got 100 in spelling.—Four people gave a book report.—We are sorry that Wayne Palmer's name was left out of the list of those who have had perfect attendance.—Allan and Eddie.

Grade 6—Mrs. Lord

We are pleased to have Linda Brown and Carolyn Chapman back after their long illnesses.—The members of the class wrote stories last week titled "An Exciting Day in Spring." Each story was brought to a climax, and then exchanged and concluded by someone else. The results were very interesting.—The solution to last week's puzzle is: $44 \frac{1}{4} \times 45 = 2025$.—We enjoyed seeing the eighth grade's new chicks.—Did you know you could find 9 times a number by subtracting?—Reporters: Lucile Fielder and Dixie Lea Brown.

Grade 7—Miss Varner

For Social Studies we are divided into four groups to make maps on South America. They are: Countries and Cities, Physical features, Industries, and Agriculture. With finger-paints we have designed many interesting pictures. Now we have framed them to use as decorations for our room.—We have decided to have a spelling contest. The captains are Peter Stowell and Juanita Hatstatt. The losing side must give the winners a party.—In health we are studying about the heart and lungs.—Our teacher is reading to us "The Missing Chums," a Hardy Boy Book.—Miss Varner brought a coconut last week. We opened it and each had some of the milk and a piece of the coconut meat.—We are all waiting for our rank cards next week.—Reporters: Nikki McMinn, Merry Ring.

Grade 8—Mr. Aspinwall

We are trying to learn the "Preamble to the Constitution." Some of us have already learned it.—We saw a movie about dial telephones, and then we had two telephones here and demonstrated with them. We also learned, "Manners While Talking on the Telephone."—We have almost finished our notebooks in Social Studies.—All of us are practicing for the Spring Concert.—Reporters: Carolyn Reynolds.

Grade 9—Mr. Darby

The chicks from the hatchery hatched March 28. Mr. Darby had ordered 20 days before. There were 108 eggs but some broke, some were rotten and some didn't hatch.—We saw pictures March 29 on the European countries. Mrs. Kneeland's son took them when he was in Europe. — Mr. Darby took Betty Bennett, Jane Grice, Bobby Dorey, Mark Freeman and a few more to the Mobile Show in Portland, Sunday, March 20. The kids came home with a picture of Otto, their mechanical man.—Mr. Darby has in his room a tape recorder. We all heard our voices over it. He has found many ways to use it.—The boys and Mr. Darby plan to take the mechanical man apart and build him better.—The class pins and ring orders will leave the school the 30th.—The report cards will be given to the pupils Monday, April 4.—In English we are taking up verbs.—In Arithmetic we are taking up volumes.—Reporters: Gloria Burris and Lee Ann Grover.

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Thursday, March 31

Read 1 John 4:15-21.
God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him. (1 John 4:16)

I ask, "Is Jesus?" my three-year-old son asked, as a Bible teacher walked out after a short visit in our home one day. This is how a child thought of a devoted woman who always closed her visits with a prayer—prayed while on her knees.

Everyone who is ruled by God's love expresses that love in one way or another. Among a crowd, one can usually point out those who possess the light of God's love, often expressing itself in a winsome smile, in gentle word or look. Those who dwell in God's love reveal peace in their minds, self-confidence, trustworthiness. They find happiness when God's love rules in their lives.

In these days of Lent, we need to be numbered among those men, women, and young people in whom dwells the love of God. We need to humble ourselves in prayer in our homes, asking for God's love to rule supreme in hearts, minds, and lives.

Prayer

Almighty, heavenly Father, we praise Thy name, for Thou art of infinite mercy and Thy great love is forever and ever. Grant us to dwell in accord with Thy holy will by accepting Thy redeeming love, for we would be counted as children in Thy kingdom. In the Lord's name we ask. Amen.

Thought For The Day
To be ruled by Christ's love creates in us the desire to be obedient to His will.

—Elvira F. Olivarez (Texas)

BEAR RIVER GRANGE

Bear River Grange No. 283 met at their hall March 26 with Worthy Master George Stearns in the chair. Although it was a stormy, miserable night there was an attendance of 25 or more. A committee was elected to look after the annual sugar eat "Resolutions of Respect" for our departed Brother Clyde Brooks were read and accepted. Even though the wind blew, it snowed, and lightened too, it proved to be a grand meeting. Wish more of you good members had been there, but the next one is April 9, and let's all hope and pray for a good night. See you then. All lady members are asked to bring sandwiches (no jam, jelly, or peanut butter ones). Visitors were asked to bring cakes. Don't forget our sick Brother Willis Brooke at White Hall, N. Y., 60 William Street. He is sick and needs to be cheered up with cards both sweet and comic.

RESOLUTIONS

Whereas the Divine Master has called to his eternal home our worthy brother, Clyde O. Brooks, be it resolved that we grant their wishes. We all join in wishing them the best and hope they will not entirely forsake us in the future.

That we, the members of Bear River Grange, and countless others whom he served in business are mindful of his efficient, faithful and courteous service.

That we extend our deep sympathy to the bereaved family to whom he was a most devoted husband and father.

That these resolutions be placed in our grange records, and that copies be sent to the bereaved family and to the Bethel Citizen for publication.

UPTON

Mrs. C. A. Judkins, Corres. —
A week ago a few hopefuls like myself, said Spring is here, even though we will have some more cold days and even a little more snow. But last week did nothing to prove that statement. More snow in quantity and heavy winds. This has been a typical old fashioned New England March.

On Thursday afternoon there was a meeting at the home of C. A. Judkins to talk over the possibilities of Farm and Home betterment. The leaders, who came to give help and instructions, were Allen Manchester and Mrs. Polly Lush of the University of Maine; Mrs. Ruth DeCoteau, HDA, Frank Hagan and Eugene Hart, County Agent and assistant from South Paris.

The "63" party sponsored by the Grange was well attended Friday evening.

The 4-H Club met with their leader, Mrs. Arline Bernier, Saturday afternoon. Subject — Soap Carving.

Lucien Bernier celebrated his eighth birthday with a party at his home, Thursday, March 24th, planned by his sisters, Juanita and

Conservation Farming In Oxford County

by Douglas L. Marsten
Soil Conservation Service

I spent half a day last week looking over a portion of the Brownfield burn area that is owned by the Oxford County Soil Conservation District. It is really a pathetic sight as many of you that have seen the area know; it is certainly desolate and scrub oak and pitch pine are about all that is growing.

The Supervisors of the Oxford County Soil Conservation District have been discussing this problem area during their last several meetings and Philip G. Andrews, Chairman of the Board from Fryeburg, went along on this inspection tour with Charles Fillibrown and myself. The Supervisors had kind of hoped that they might do some planting on the area, and if possible with the District-owned tree planter. The topography of the area is really rough with many steep-sided ridges running through the lot. The area is also pretty well cluttered up with fallen, dead trees and planting by any method would be quite a job.

There are a few white pine scattered along Ten-Mile River, which forms the west boundary of the lot, and Mr. Andrews thought that maybe if something was used to disturb the surface of the ground and expose bare soil; particularly during year that the pines were bearing seed, that we might get some natural regeneration. Of course this would be limited to an area bordering these seed trees, but it could prove to be a very economical way of reforesting at least a portion of the area and we hope to be able to try this out on a limited scale in the near future. If it were not for the numerous fallen dead trees, a bog and bush harrow might work well; or possibly a bulldozer with a rake-type blade would do the job. At any rate you can be sure that the District Supervisors will continue to work on this problem and we will keep you informed of any work that is done.

my PET PEEVE
by Mike Bennett

FOR the life of me, I can't understand why it is that two children so young (3 & 11) always know the day of the week. We don't even have a calendar around the house, yet they always know when Saturday and Sunday roll around.

On these two particular days, according to theory, Daddy is supposed to be able to sleep a couple of hours longer, drink a cup of coffee before leisurely putting on a pair of old shorts and blue jeans. Also according to theory, the Master of the House can take as much time as he dearies to relax with the morning paper and dwell upon the luxury of not having to dash about with a shaving brush in one hand, a comb in the other and breakfast near enough for a bite now and then when he can wangle a free hand.

Lately, for some odd and unexplainable reason, the clattering of tractors, tricycles and toy breaks loose at least one or two hours earlier on weekends—often join with the noise of pots and pans hanging away in the kitchen.

I haven't mentioned this to a single soul, but I harbor a suspicion that the Daddy of the House is inciting mutiny. It never fails that there are "several" things for me to do, "since you're already awake."

Yes, chicanery is afoot and something must be done. My first plan—keeping the entire household up later than usual—went for naught. The clatter and din started at the usual early hour next a. m. and poor Pop had a hard time lasting through the day.

But, I'll think of something. If I have to lose sleep to do it.

Players Different Today—Stengel

Things are different now, says Casey Stengel — much different than they were when he was a ball player. His views on how things have changed are set down in an interview in this week's edition of The Sporting News.

The players are different, said the Yankees manager, the ways of training are different, and the times are different. "In the days when I was a player," he said, "you'd never see the Wall Street Journal around the clubhouse."

That means a business atmosphere, and the way Stengel looks at it, that's as it should be. The owners have big investments, the managers and players get big salaries, and the overhead in running a major league ball club reads like the national debt used to read back in 1910.

Casey started his ball playing in 1910, with Kankakee. It was late in 1912 that he went to the Dodgers, and he was at their training camp the following spring. Listen to what he has to say about training in those days. "First class hotels didn't like ball players, so we slept in second-rate quarters. The ball club would give you two dollars and a half a day, warning that it shouldn't be spent foolishly. "In other words," Stengel said, "you lived on your meal money, and tried to put something away for a rainy day. If you got $4,000 a year, you

"The first couple of days," Casey went on, "they busted the squad up into parties to try out all the restaurants in town for rates and quality of food. When they reported back, we decided where was the best load of phonelines at the cheapest prices."

Stengel said there wasn't anything complicated about training camps back in 1912. There were usually only 18 players in camp, and one coach besides the manager. Nowadays, he pointed out, there are not only coaches, but specialists in coaching. The Yankees have Bill Dickey for the catchers, Jim Turner for the pitchers, Frankie Crosetti for the infielders, and Stengel himself working with the outfielders.

There were two workouts daily during those early training days, and Stengel says he likes the idea even now. "I'm like McGraw," he said. "He always believed it was a good thing to get the players tired so that at night they wanted to get to bed early. Also, if you work twice a day, you keep the players off the golf courses. And if they want to be on beaches, they get sunburned and can't sleep."
